

A treasure trove of questions

Dive in to a sea of answers and discover a hoard of marvellous questions, research gems and valuable strategies.

Delivered via zoom for small groups

This is an exciting course packed full of strategies to take back and use in the classroom. Teachers ask up to two questions every minute, 400 in a day, around 70,000 a year - which is two to three million in the course of a career! As so much teacher time is devoted to questioning, it is wise to invest time in training to maximise the impact of questioning.

A number of practical approaches are covered through the training, including over 30 different strategies you can try out in the classroom to make your lessons fun and engaging. It also considers how to ensure questions are challenging, drive learning, and improve the rigour of classroom talk.

Consultant & trainer

In addition to considering teacher questions we also need to consider pupils' ability to respond. How can we improve the quality of answers pupils give, their confidence to engage in debate and enable them to learn from each other? We know that highly effective learners use questions to drive their own learning and as a result make faster progress. Leave the course with practical strategies that will enable pupils to ask their own questions.

Easy to use, high impact techniques and electronic supporting materials is provided to aid implementation.

Covered within the training are a number of themes:

- Increasing the impact of questioning.
- Make your lessons fun and engaging with over 30 different questioning strategies to try out.
- Challenging learners through deep questioning and dialogue.
- Generating high quality pupil responses.
- Developing pupil skills in asking their own questions.
- Increasing participation and supporting reluctant pupils.
- Improving the quality and rigour of class and group discussions.
- Matching questions to purpose and subjects.
